Renovations Under Construction

Our project managers, carpenters, plumbers and electricians have been busy building several projects, including these two. Stay tuned for professional after photos in the next newsletter!

Front Entry. A dramatic contrast in the before and after of this front entry. We're adding curb appeal. It's part of a large remodeling project that includes interior and exterior upgrades.

Visit our website and click on the Buzz tab and blog to read more about this project.

Roof Deck. We're building a roof deck on a row house, including a small structure to access the deck from the third floor. We had to use a crane to lift the materials onto the roof.

Prevent a Remodeling Nightmare

Over the years, we've had several clients come to us to complete a project they started with another firm. We offer tips and lessons learned by these clients to prevent you from making the same mistakes. Visit our website and click on the Buzz tab and blog to read more.

Our Virtual Reality Glasses in the News

The Washington Post and WUSA9 covered our use of virtual reality glasses that allow clients to view their project in 3D to help them understand the changes to their home and get a feel for the end result.

Meet Dana Kaminsky

Dana recently joined Landis as a team leader. Her business development background, blended with her creative vision, led her to our company. Her primary focus is to serve as a liaison between the homeowner and the design team. She is passionate about making clients' renovation goals a reality. Dana lives in Potomac with her husband and two children. She enjoys cooking, playing tennis, biking, browsing décor and fashion, and traveling.

St. John's Robotics

We'll be cheering on project designer Chris Williams and the St. John's College High School Mech Cadets robotics team as they compete in the world championships April 26-29 in St. Louis. Chris has been a volunteer for five years. His younger son, who is now a computer programming major in college, was a member for two years while at the school. Chris stayed on as shop teacher, carpenter, head of computer-aided design and handling team logistics. Go Cadets!
